

Grading guidelines: IRSK4180 - Veiledet lesning i keltisk, særlig irsk, språk og filologi

The examination is in the form of a semester assignment. The assignment is to be an independent work with original reasoning at the same time as it relates to the state of the art in research. The student is expected to use the course literature in formulating the research question and in writing the essay.

The grading will primarily take into account the following aspects:

1. Theoretical awareness and method
2. Treatment of research material
3. Presentation of earlier research
4. Structure and argumentation

A                    Exceptionally high level of originality of the research question and of theoretical awareness. Exceptionally good overview of the research material and earlier research. A very well structured and argued scholarly text.

B                    Very high level of originality of the research question and of theoretical awareness. Very good overview of the research material and earlier research. A very well structured and argued scholarly text.

C                    High level of originality of the research question and of theoretical awareness. Good overview of the research material and earlier research. A well structured and argued scholarly text.

D                    Acceptable level of originality of the research question and of theoretical awareness. Acceptable overview of the research material and earlier research. A structured and argued scholarly text.

E                    Low level of originality of the research question and of theoretical awareness. Some overview of the research material and earlier research. With significant weaknesses in structure and argumentation.

F                    Lack of originality of the research question and of theoretical awareness. Overview of the research material and earlier research is lacking. With significant flaws in structure and argumentation.