

i Eksamensinformasjon

The exam is open from 9:30 to 12:00. Your uploaded files will be delivered automatically then the exam is over.

The exam consists of two parts:

1. Final submission of the semester paper

Formal requirements:

- The text you submit must be your own independent work, and the final version of an assignment about ethics that you received in your seminar group.
- Length: Between 800-1000 words. The word count includes references in parentheses or footnotes, but not the list of references (bibliography) and not the assigned topic. Give the number of words at the beginning of the document.
- Font: Times New Roman (12 points) with 1½ in line spacing.
- The candidate number, the assigned topic and its number should be given at the beginning of your document. Do not write your name in the document.

We recommend using a template:

The submission is to be done as PDF. For saving as PDF see:

References: When you use content from other sources in your assignment, you should give a reference to the source. The content can be facts or arguments and reasoning from others. References must also be given when using content from the curriculum, books, articles, webpages, and other students' answers or your own previously delivered answers. Literal repetition/word-for-word repetition that another author has written must be enclosed within quotation marks and reference must be given. A list of all references must also be included at the end of your semester paper.

2. Exam Questions

The exam questions are to be answered in a text editor, for instance Word, and saved as a single PDF.

The answers must be uploaded in inspera within the time limit. Also here we recommend using a template: <https://www.uio.no/studier/eksamen/innlevering/oppgavemal/>

Answer TWO of the THREE assignments in the home exam question section. For all assignments, you should discuss the questions in addition to explaining different arguments from the curriculum. You can freely choose to use contributions from Exphil I (Philosophy and History of Science) and Exphil II (ethics), but it should be clear from your discussion why these contributions are relevant to the assignment.

Recommended time use: Up to one hour per assignment.

Formal requirements:

- Independence. All parts of the examination must be your own independent work and a result of your own learning and efforts. Therefore: do not "copy and paste", use your own words, and do not work together with other students during the exam.
- References. If you use literal repetition/word-for-word repetition of something that another author has written then references must be given. Direct citations of text must be enclosed within quotation marks. If you give a free rendering (in your own words) of something another author has written or said (paraphrase), then you do not need to reference. It is not required with a list of references on these home exam questions.
- The candidate number should be given at the beginning of your document. The number of the topics you have chosen should also be given in your document. Do not write your name in the document.

Generally for both the semester paper and the exam questions:

- Plagiarism control: All submissions are electronically checked for plagiarism against online resources, various text databases, and other students assignments submitted this semester and earlier. If submissions fail to refer to sources or coincide with other responses it can lead to suspicion of cheating and can result in serious consequences for you as a student.

- The exam will automatically be submitted when the exam time is out. If you chose not to submit even though you have started the exam then you must withdraw from the exam, or delete all of the answers that you have made. You can withdraw using the menu in the upper right corner.

EXAM QUESTIONS, choose two of three:

1. What is the difference between having sense perception of an object, for example, a piece of wax, and having knowledge about wax? Discuss with reference to two texts from the syllabus.
2. Is happiness relevant for finding out how we ought to act? Discuss with reference to two texts from the syllabus.'
3. In the "Abstract..." Hume writes that "we can never penetrate so far into the essence and construction of bodies, as to perceive the principle on which their mutual influence is founded" (Hume 2017, 111). Discuss this claim and its implication for science. Make use of Hume and one other thinker from the syllabus in your discussion.
