

KRIM2963

Exam paper

Lapsus$: Oxford teen accused of being multi-millionaire cyber-criminal - BBC News:
<https://www.bbc.com/news/technology-60864283>

Shortly describe the case from the link above by using central concepts from the course syllabus, such as cybercrime and digital criminology. Then use the course syllabus to discuss how both technology and the wider context of human factors are important in understanding similar crimes by drawing on examples from the case.

Note that the exam aims to test and assess your understanding of readings from the syllabus, the connections between them, and your ability to reflect upon central concepts and topics addressed in the course.