Exam assignment and regulations
ANTH4150 – Ethnography in Practice
Spring 2024

Exam

You are to submit a reflection paper as a pdf file in Inspera before the announced deadline.

The paper consists of a reflection/report on the projects you have done in the Oslo city district. While the work has partly been done in groups, your papers are individual submissions. The paper should outline the project task, the methodology you used and your main findings. You are also invited to reflect on what you have learned about applied anthropology during the course.

Within this very broad framework, there is considerable scope for flexibility. You may, for example, use the reflection paper to hone your skills in formulating what anthropological knowledge is useful for in different fields of practice; how ethnographic methods can be applied in non-academic contexts; or how anthropological theory can shed light on real-world problems in way that enable action and intervention. You may of course also write about the ethical dilemmas that accompany different forms of applied anthropology, and about how anthropologist practitioners may navigate such dilemmas.

Requirements

- The focus is on ethnography in practice. The paper should fall within the scope of this course as described on the course webpage, in other words.

- Since the reflection paper counts as the exam, you must use the curriculum. You are also expected to use the 200 pages of the curriculum that you have chosen, in your reflection paper. You must submit a list detailing the 200 pages that you have selected when you submit the exam. The requirement for the paper itself is a minimum of three references (including the chosen curriculum).

Word limit

The reflection paper must be 2500 words.

Exams at the University of Oslo may be checked for correct word count. Papers which do not meet the requirement will not be graded.

Language

You may submit your response in English, Norwegian, Swedish or Danish.
